Take refuge in the sophisticated Saxon

With quality estate homes and the perfect country setting, Today's Homes is creating a refuge from big city life, with all the conveniences home buyers could wish for, at the Lakes of Muirfield.

The Saxon showhome within the community is a generously sized 2,528 sq. ft. over two storeys, with some unique features that homeowners will love.

"The architecture out in this area exudes a small-town charm," says Today's Homes' Michael Tandara.

"It's done in a semi-Craftsman style, with stucco and stone detailing, which reflects the rustic look of being out in the country.

"The interior of the home is done in a warm, contemporary style. You see this in the rear great room, which has a modern fireplace, flanked by windows."

The kitchen has been beautifully appointed in a look that is sophisticated, with a metropolitan backsplash.

"The large kitchen island has a flush eating bar and great cabinetry, making this space functional as well," he says. "There's a large walk-in pantry that works for storage."

The rear-facing dining room and nook has a modern layout that has been well received. The stairs are located at the rear of the home, with a unique tech centre at the bottom, adjacent to the nook.

"Walking up the stairs, you can have a bookcase built right into the side," Tandara says. "It has a unique, stepped-up look to it, while being an excellent use of space."

The central bonus room upstairs opens to below and has been designed for bringing light into the home — there is a series of windows, both to the exterior as well as to the master bedroom.

"These interior windows are a neat look and allow natural light to flood through the upper level," he says.

"The master suite, which stretches along one side of the home, has a unique retreat attached to it, set at the back of the home. It can be used as a sitting area and looks out over the golf course."

With an upstairs laundry and large secondary bedrooms with walk-in closets, the home offers space and convenience to the whole family.

Set in the idyllic prairie countryside, life at the Lakes of Muirfield is a haven from the hectic lifestyle; the focus is on relaxation and recreation.

"You have, of course, the golf club, with the 18-hole golf course surrounding the homes," Tandara says.

"There are also lots of winter activities that residents can partake in, like cross-country skiing, snowshoeing and skating on some of the ponds."
